The IX class parents were also informed about NIOS as some of the students had failed second time in class IX.

SCHOOL GARDEN

A great way to teach ecological literacy and respect for the Earth, is to help students grow a garden. They end up learning the most important thing which they never learnt.

The idea of a garden has always been important in poetic imagination, as parable, as metaphor for human activity, as sanctuary, going all the way back to the original garden, the Biblical Garden of Eden. The activity of gardening lends itself inevitably to metaphors of human work, human influence on the natural world & all the natural processes of life, growth and death.

Our School Garden is in full bloom & one can find myriad flowers in varied hues everywhere. The School Garden transforms the entire campus & spreads its pleasant fragrance all over. It is indeed a pleasure for the eyes to enjoy such a pleasant sight.

Bidding Adieu!!

In this issue we bid goodbye to Ms Shahla Naaz, an exceptional teacher and a mentor who retired from active service after serving the school for 30 years. She joined the school in 1987 and since then she has been recognized, respected, and appreciated for all her valuable skills, knowledge, and her positive qualities. We thank her for her efforts in shaping the future of students under her tutelage. She will be remembered for the great things that she has done not only for this school but for every child and colleague in the workplace.
